Harding To Apply To North Central Summer of 1948

Sears Represents Harding At Association Conference

Dean L. C. Sears states that Harding plans to make application for entrance into the North Central Association this summer.

Dean Sears represented Harding at the annual conference of the North Central Association of Colleges and Universities held at the Palmer House in Chicago March 8-12. The chief purpose of his attendance was to discuss with the secretary of the association Harding's plans for entrance.

Our responsibility to education and to world education was the central theme of the meeting. A study was made of the report of the commission to study education appointed by the president.

At a dinner, March 10, the conference for improvement of instruction made plans for a workshop to be held at the University of Minnesota in June. Dean Sears will attend from Harding. Dr. W. K. Summitt will attend a second workshop at Chicago in August.

A regional meeting of the association was planned for April 16-17 at the College of the Ozarks. April 15, Dr. Lee Furrow of Knox College, Ill., representing the association, will discuss with the Harding faculty the work being done for entrance.

Dean Sears also attended a special conference of deans to discuss problems with deanship and the standards of various schools.

Wednesday's Child: A Chronicle On The Destinies of Lowerclassmen

By Tommy Thompson

You don't have to look very far to find trouble. Just wait around a while and it will show up naturally, smacking its chops, gnashing its teeth, and filing its fingernails. "Mulciber," Angelo Charmian greeted, slapping open the door to my room, "I come a bearer of sad tidings."

Unmoved, I glanced casually up from the College Club orange I was peeling. "Angie, I have just completed two hours of piercing agony. I am now registered. All my classes are completely selected and written on the records. Nothing short of violent catastrophe would cause me to bat an eyelash."

Angelo stroked my curly locks tenderly. "Enfants perdus. Tomorrow we take sophomore examinations."

He grasped my arm just as I was about to leap from the second story window. "Mulciber," he said, "They will last but eight hours. Let us be strong."

I attempted to slash my wrists, but Angelo secured a full-Nelson and thrust a knee between my shoulder blades. "The prime ob-

Building To House Industrial Arts Being Constructed

Preparation has already begun on the new Industrial Arts building, which will be situated directly east of the tennis courts. It will be made up of two one story buildings facing east and west and these will be connected by a two story building facing east, thereby forming one complete unit.

The two one story buildings will be 248 feet long by 85 feet wide and these will be 30 feet apart. The two story building will be 54 by 40 feet. It is estimated that construction of the building will take about seven months and the building will cost approximately $100,000 less equipment and property.

Courses will be offered in all divisions of industrial mechanics and technological skill, qualifying students for positions as: mechanist, welders, stem power plant operators, deisel, gasoline, hydrolyin, and compressed air mechanics.

Specialized fields to be offered are sales engineering, engineering draftmanship, production planning, control and time study in cast analysis, purchasing, estimating, and management. The department will eventually include, electronics, woodworking, fire - tool making, auto and farm mechanics and building construction.

Falk To Broadcast

Malva Lou Falk, special piano student from Searcy, will be featured soloist tonight on the first fifteen minute part of the regular Tuesday night broadcast originating from the choral studio and going over station WHBQ.

Miss Falk will play "Chorale With Two Variations" by Prof. Clarence Haflinger, and "Ballade in G Minor", by Chopin.

jective of the tests is to determine the degree of culture you have assimilated during your brief stay here," he explained patiently.

"You can't coerce me," I said with conviction. "I won't take 'em!"

As it began to dawn on the morn of Wednesday, we left the dining hall, eating College Club oranges. "Angie," I asked, "where will this fracas manifest itself?"

"You have a choice. Ad building or Science Annex."

In childlike innocence we trotted off to the annex, where there waited happy, smiling Hardingites and a genial faculty member, who bade us come in and then padlocked the door behind us.

Fourteen 200-pound bruisers staggered in under the weight of the test papers. The first one we got was on English. A frail soph in the back of the room looked at it once and fainted. They rolled him over in a corner and left him, face down on the floor.

"Mulciber," Angie commented, "This thing is stupidly simple."

Boys' Dormitory Will Be First On Building Program Schedule

Lamb Schedules Temporo Meeting Tomorrow At 5:15

A TEMPORO Staff meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, March 24th, at 4:15 p. m. in the Auditorium. All persons interested in working on the Spring Issue should attend this preliminary session.

"We plan to have a much larger magazine this term, with improvements over the last issue. The magazine may have a two-color cover this time, and sell for the same price, if not less," Editor Nat Lamb, said.

Anyone interested in getting a staff position for next year should attend, as there will be several openings on the staff following this issue. Journalism credit can be given for staff work on the magazine.

Students unable to attend this meeting, yet are interested in contributing stories for publication, should contact either the editor or Prof. Neil B. Cope.

Six Are Added To Bison Staff

Six Press Club members were selected for Bison Staff membership at a Staff meeting last Tuesday. Those chosen were Betty Blair, Mary Katherine King, Pauline Williams, Johnnie Ray, Hal Hougey and Tommy Thompson.

Quantity and quality of work and attitude toward Bison activities are factors determining Staff membership.

A Press Clubber must have a minimum of fifty inches printed before he is eligible for consideration.

This system was initiated this year.

Solicitations in the campaign were begun March 1, and the drive is rapidly gaining momentum. Dr. George S. Benson, president of the college, revealed by telephone from Philadelphia that several large contributions have been made recently.

The ceremonies scheduled for March 29 will be attended by several distinguished guests. Clifton L. Ganus, Sr., prominent businessman and civic leader of New Orleans, La., who is chairman of the College Board, will be present.

Col. T. H. Barton, of El Dorado, and C. Hamilton Moses, Little Rock, members of the nationwide 25-man committee which is sponsoring the financial campaign, have been asked by Dr. Benson to attend the ceremony. Other members of the National Committee are expected to attend.

The Building Fund Campaign is expected to pay for the following new buildings:

1. A library.
2. An auditorium-administration building.
3. A student center building.
4. A gymnasium.
5. A boy's dormitory.
6. A training school building.
7. A new wing on the present girl's dormitory.

No new major buildings have been erected since the college acquired the campus and other property in Searcy in 1934. Growth of the college, and increased enrollment demand a larger plant, and the building campaign is expected to fill that demand.

The ground-breaking ceremony is the most significant development in the college's growth since the mortgage-burning ceremony of 1939.

Everyone in Searcy is invited to the ceremony, which will take place on the southeast corner of the athletic field.

Oratory Finalists Chapel Speakers Friday, Saturday

Winners of the Bison Oratorical Contest will be decided from the two finalists in the women's division speaking in chapel Friday morning, and from the finalists in the men's division speaking in chapel Saturday morning. Both speakers will be heard in both chapels each morning.

Preliminaries will be held in Mrs. J. N. Armstrong's speech classes Wednesday at 8:55, 9:40 and 11:40. Preliminary judges are Mrs. Armstrong, Prof. Leslie Burke and Dr. Frank Rhodes. Written criticism of each speaker's delivery will be given by members of the speech class to the speakers.

The original speeches have been prepared on issues of current interest and do not exceed ten minutes.

This contest is sponsored annually by the Bison.

"I Am A Part Of All I Have Met"

Do you think of yourself as one person? Well, you're not just one person. You are a peculiar mixture of all the people you meet, the things you do and the books you read. You meet no one on the street, read no street sign, but the person you meet, the sign you read becomes a part of you.

Read the books, make the friends, and do the things which you wish to become part of you, for all you do and all you see will become you. If you do not meet people, do things and read books, part of you will be blank. Thus a person can be like a hollow shell or a page blank without the pen of the writer.

A person who has only a small group of friends begins to take in too much of each of these, and in time he will have many of their faults. Books, too, must be read in number and the best parts adopted into yourself.

What about your friends, your work, and your books? Are they such as you will be glad to say are part of you in the future?
—B. P.

Wanted: More of Same!

We'd like to aim this editorial at two birds. They both flew in Friday evening of last week. That is, the Sing Song and the Shakespeare films.

The singing was fun—yes, loads of it. Always wondered what all the words to "The Bullfrog on the Bank" were! Thanks, Mrs. Jewell. Please do it again!

As for Othello and Macbeth—to meet their characterizations presented in such a finished manner, was but to know them so much better. Thanks, again, this time to Dean Sears and the English department.

Frankly, abandoning all subtlety, we're hinting for more of the same!

The Log and I

"Easy as falling off a log backwards," goes an old proverb; but just how easy is "falling off a log?"

The proverb is a true one for indeed falling off a log is easy, but—the proverb fails to mention landing on your neck, which is not always easy. It has always been easy to take the easy way out and fall or let yourself go down. No energy is used in falling, but when the bottom is reached, the victim begins to wish he had retained his balance. It takes a lot less energy to stay up than to pick yourself up once you are on the rocks!

Remember how much easier it is NOW to put forth a little effort and stay up, than it will be to pull yourself up in six weeks.
—B. P.

Thanks, Bruce Cooley!

These few lines are dedicated to a student-filled position on this campus. A position filled by only one, but affecting every student enrolled at Harding.

Bruce Cooley has done the job this year. It was Ther-man Healy last year. The Petit Jean student photographer.

A love of service as well as photography is an essential before anyone tackles the job.

Meeting the deadline and taking those last minute pictures kept Bruce in the darkroom until two, three and four a. m. almost every night for the last two weeks.

A vote of thanks should be extended just for his patience when trying to take group pictures with different ones being late for appointments or not showing up at all.

This position does not carry a scholarship. His reward is satisfaction in service, the experience, and OUR SINCER-EST THANKS!!
—J. C.

A little-known group is meeting on David Lipscomb campus every week. "THINK ON THESE THINGS..."

"In His Steps"

By Roger Hawley

"For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us leaving us an example, that ye should follow His steps."

The above scripture is the text that Charles M. Sheldon used in writing his famous religious novel. "In His Steps". This article is not intended to be a book review, but rather a recommendation of a book—but especially of a way of life. "What would Jesus do?" is the question that the book asks—the question that all the main characters resolved to ask themselves in guiding their relationships with God and man. The results? Loss of money, loss of jobs, friends—but gain of the most important thing—a peace of mind that can come only through the knowledge that one is giving his all for God.

We too sing such hymns as "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow," "All for Jesus," "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken," "When He Calls Me I Will Answer," and yet perhaps we have made the words nothing more than meaningless phrases. And then, from the pulpit and in private study we hear and read the words of the Lord: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," and fail to realize that these words carry as much weight as a command as they did nineteen-hundred years ago.

In this day that philosophy isn't practical, you say? Perhaps from the world's standpoint it is foolish, but in God's eyes it is not: "He that winneth souls is wise." (Prov. 11:30)

Can you think of a better guide for your life than the question: "What would Jesus do?"

God's Will

The best will is our Father's will, And we may rest there calm and still;

O make it hour by hour thine own, And wish for naught but that alone

Which pleases God.

—Paul Gerhardt.

It is no use to grumble and complain;

It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice;

When God sends out the weather and sends rain—

Why, rain's my choice.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS IN YOSEMITE by Carl Parker Russell. This "differentness" of this book makes its interesting material even more appealing... for who would think of writing a book about a park... a national park! Earl Packer Russell did when he began investigating and found how much romance and adventure lies in the valleys of Yosemite, known to few but the mountains. Russell gives the history of Yosemite from its discovery to today. One especially interesting chapter is about the history of the hotels and lodges, and their keepers of the Park.

NORTH OF THE ORIENT by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Anne Lindbergh insists that her book is "not a technical account of a flight of the great circle route from New York to Tokyo... not a geographical record... not a scientific record, nor in any sense a guide-book." It is an almost diary-like account of her experiences, written because she says some people are compelled to crystallize their own impressions of experiences by retelling them. Interesting... and very readable, this little volume would be delightful Monday afternoon reading.

LEGENDS OF HAWAII by Padraic Colum. As distinctively Hawaiian as lei, and soft, almost chanted music, are these tales of the myths of the Islands. The author went to Hawaii in 1923. He learned something of the language and went through the islands to learn from people who could tell him the traditions of Hawaiian romance, and relate it in a traditional way. He studied much material under a group of Polynesian scholars in Honolulu, and from many sources collected the voluminous material which he used to prepare for us the intriguing legends that tell us something of how the Polynesian thinks. The stories had to be condensed, subdued, highlighted, and completely retold using the voluminous material that the Hawaiian story tellers did accumulate that to us would be monotonous. From this reshaping comes a group of tales indeed intriguing and fascinating. Outstanding to me were "Laia, Princess of the Rainbow," and the

"Fire Goddess."

LITERARY PRIZES AND THEIR WINNERS by Anne J. Ritchner. Based on the assumption that books that win awards are those that most often attract the attention of the reader when he is selecting a book, this volume very concisely tells about the prizes awarded all over the world. Most outstanding of course is the Nobel prize, on which there is a short history and explanation. American motion picture, short story, poetry, juvenile, and publisher's prizes are discussed, and a list of the winners since 1939 given for the outstanding ones.

This week in our library "something new has been added" to the reading room. The Texas Club for their project, has subscribed to the Dallas Morning News which will appear in our library daily. A good idea if you especially enjoy the home town paper. Suggest this to your state club!

THE EYE—THE EAR

By Jimmie Atkinson

IN JOURNALISM WE LEARN that the two most common sins of newspaper writing are inflation (sophomore words) and triteness, which we can lump as symptoms of journalese. The former never bothers me, but triteness is another story. Here are some of the journalese which get more than their share of use.

WE ENTERTAIN HIGH hopes, discard precedent, are in dead earnest, stop short, a task confronts us. Then when discussing the weather, winter holds the city in its icy grip, snow blankets the countryside, disrupts train schedules, maroons thousands of commuters, traffic is at a standstill, oldtimers declare blizzard worst since '88.

DAYLIGHT IS ALWAYS broad daylight, he's a rank outsider, sober as a jug, brown as a berry, frightened out of his wits, the fate hangs in the balance, landscapes are dotted, beauties are raving beauties, point with pride, every baby boy is a bouncing baby boy, all brides are blushing.

THEY GO ON AND ON. AND what do we do about these over-worked bromides? Do we think up something original to use in their stead? No. We go ahead and use them.

JOHN BROWN MADE A score of 15 out of a possible 14 in music test last term. John, how about letting me in on the secret? ... Clyde Dale "Birdseed" Johnson is not going to school this term. He claims to be regaining his second million in the Beanery biz. Ask him sometime why he keeps singing "I Get the Neck of the Chicken." Also, ask him what K.H.O.N. represents. ... Bob Morris seems to have turned newspaper critic. ... Editor Connell has threatened to hire Fosdick if some one on the staff doesn't solve the "Riddle of the Missing Editorial." ... I hear "Bubble-Gum" O'Neal singing "There Ought to be a Society" lately.

THE NEW LOOK SEEMS TO be spreading. It certainly seems like the opposition to the long skirts has fallen by the wayside. We can't keep them from wearing them, but surely we don't have to like 'em.

I RECEIVED A NOTE ABOUT my column yesterday. It said in full: "You sure have a foul column. Can you dress a chicken?" My answer is: Not on sixty-five a month.

In rapid succession the examinations followed — Science, Fine

Arts, Math, Contemporary Affairs, etc. I wouldn't say the time limit was short, but Angie glanced up at a passing blonde and missed three tests.

Of course there were recesses. We had fifteen minute periods off in the two sessions to take shots of morphine.

"Shall we go?" Angie asked as ebony fingered night crept through the annex windows.

"Sure," I said. A stalwart soul, he pulled my arm over his shoulders and carried me out.

A strange silence had settled over us all as we sat on the west steps of Godden Hall after supper. "Y'know," an unidentified soph mused, "them tests wus ruf."

We pelted him with College Club oranges until he disappeared in the night.

Baseball Teams Are Organized

Baseball teams have been organized and divided into two leagues, a major and a minor league. There are six teams in the major leagues and four in the minors.

Each player chose the league in which he wished to play, but arrangements will be made so that a player may be transferred from one league to another if it is seen that such a change is needed.

Probably four of the starting major league pitchers will be pitching on the Harding diamond for the first time. Lloyd Wright and Max Mowrer appear to be the only starting hurlers from last year who are sure to repeat.
